

ABSTRACT

A mechanism that allows customization, adaptation and/or personalization of content provided to a client device by a server device based on one or more dynamically variable characteristics of the client device, for example, geographical location, network connection conditions, device configuration, user preferences. Information exchanged to enable customization is adapted based on a user's privacy preferences